Grassroots Leadership Development

Equipping Leaders to Train Others

Seminar:

*Christian Leadership Development through Theological Education by Extension
(TEE)*

Ralph Winters, founder of the US Center for World Missions, claims that 95% of those who need theological training cannot get it because it is not accessible to them. Theological Education by Extension (TEE) makes theological training accessible to almost everyone.

This special method of leadership development was developed by Presbyterian missionaries working in Guatemala in the 1960's. It was so successful that within ten years it was being used by 128 training institutions in 57 countries. Today it is being used all over the world to strengthen churches and build leadership.

Bob Sheffler, the seminar speaker, served as a missionary for 32 years in western Africa in the field of leadership development. He set up a successful TEE program that developed into the Christian Leadership Training Institute. The Institute supervises TEE classes in four countries and is totally under African leadership.

Bob has published 11 TEE courses for the training of church leaders. He is sharing his TEE courses and expertise in TEE with missions around the world to help train the 95% who find theological training inaccessible.

TEE is a low cost method to develop leadership. Local church leaders can be the teachers with a small amount of training. Only a small amount of supervision is needed to administer the program once it is set up.

The TEE method of leadership development combines three key elements: special programmed home study materials, dynamic weekly discussion meetings and practical work assignments.
